

Sunsuper reshapes executive team to continue targeting growth

Sunsuper has announced changes to its executive team to allow the Fund to effectively execute its ambitious growth strategy, and ensure continued strong governance and risk management.

The changes align with the Fund's strategy to increase its focus on a data-driven, digital-direct consumer strategy while maintaining the strong growth and momentum the Fund has experienced in the corporate super, retail distribution and SME space.

In line with this, Sunsuper's executive team has expanded from eight roles to eleven.

The new Sunsuper executive team is:

- Jason Sommer, Chief Financial Officer
- Petrina Weston, Executive General Manager People & Culture
- Steven Travis, Executive General Manager Member Growth
- David Woodall, Executive General Manager Corporate & Regional Growth
- Danielle Mair, Executive General Manager Enterprise Change
- Stevhan Davidson, Executive General Manager Customer Engagement
- Terri Hamilton, Company Secretary
- Lachlan East, Chief Risk Officer
- Ian Patrick, Chief Investment Officer
- Teifi Whatley, Executive General Manager Customer & Technology
- Katherine Kaspar, Kinetic CEO (leading the bedding down of the Kinetic merger)

Excitingly, the new structure marks the promotion of Petrina Weston, David Woodall, Danielle Mair and Stevhan Davidson to the executive leadership team.

The new executive team structure will take effect from 1 March 2019.

As part of these changes, one of the current executive team members, Michael Mulholland, has decided to leave Sunsuper. Michael was offered a substantial role in the new team but has decided that now, after five incredibly successful years, is the right time to move on from Sunsuper and spend more time in Sydney with his family.

Michael has made an invaluable contribution to the growth of Sunsuper during his nearly five years with the Fund. He has helped Sunsuper more than double its funds under management, and led the transformation of Sunsuper's growth momentum driven by his successful execution of our multi-channel growth strategy including corporate super, retail distribution, customer marketing, and SME distribution via Beam. Scott Hartley, the executive team and the whole Sunsuper team is sad to see Michael leave and wish him well in his future endeavours.

Michael will remain at Sunsuper until 15 March to ensure a smooth and successful handover of his current role.
